

BRIEFING

RACE AT WORK 2021 SURVEY INSIGHTS PAPER: NORTH EAST ENGLAND

24,638 people in the UK took part in the 2021 Race at Work (RAW) survey, with 639 responses received from people living in the North East. The information given in this insight paper is based on the responses from the YouGov statistically weighted panel of 5,183 workers, of which 123 (2%) were from the North East. In this paper we compare the experiences of people in the North East to those in the UK overall as well as looking at trend data from the RAW surveys that took place in 2015 and 2018.

Leadership in the region

One of the principles of the Race at Work Charter, established in 2018, is that organisations should have someone at the top of their organisation championing race. One of the key questions posed in the RAW survey specifically focuses on this area and can be seen in Figure 1, “Does your organisation have at least one senior leader and/or champion who actively promotes equality, diversity and fairness?”. Figure 1 shows there is a positive trend. Over the last six years, the number of organisations that have a senior leader or champion who promotes equality, diversity and fairness has increased from 32% to 44% in the UK overall. The story for the North East is even more positive, with a large increase from 30% in 2018 to 51% in 2021. This is the largest increase in leadership visibility within any UK region.

(Base) 2015: UK 6,076, North East 197 (Base) 2018: UK 6,506, North East 182 (Base) 2021: UK 4,929, North East 122

Ethnicity pay gap reporting

While ethnicity pay gap reporting is still voluntary for companies, there is clear movement to suggest that, in time, it will become mandatory. The recent Women and Equalities Committee report argued there was no excuse for government inaction. Capturing ethnicity pay gap data is important for establishing a baseline to measure progress and track performance against targets. We have seen a large increase in the number of organisations voluntarily capturing their ethnicity pay gap data (see Figure 2). This has increased from 11% in 2018 to 19% in 2021 in the UK. A large increase has occurred in the North East, with organisations collecting ethnicity pay data increasing from 14% to 20%. Similarly, the overall trend in the UK shows employers are more willing to publish their ethnicity pay gap report, leaping up to 56% from 50% in 2018 (see Figure 3). The increase was even greater for the North East, increasing from 42% to 61%. This is the largest increase of employees reporting employers publishing their ethnicity pay gap data in any UK region.

Supporting race inclusion allies in the workplace

It is important for employers to provide support for inclusion allies to promote race equality in teams, at work and within their communities, as seen in Figure 4 which shows 26% of White employees say that they would like more support from their employers to promote race and ethnic diversity and inclusion. In the North East, Black, Asian, Mixed Race and other ethnically diverse respondents had slightly less demand for support with allyship than the UK average, with 40% wanting this compared to 46% in the UK. For White British respondents there was a slight difference, with 24% of respondents wanting more support in the North East and 26% in the UK overall.

Race at Work Survey 2021 Regional Comparison

The following chart shows how each region in the UK responded to some of the key questions in the 2021 RAW survey. The North East responses were similar to the UK overall on collecting ethnicity pay gap reporting. It has less demand for more support on allyship and is both more likely to have more visibility of senior leaders and publish ethnicity pay gap data.

Actions that employers can take

The following outlines the actions employers can take to demonstrate their commitment to supporting allyship, ensuring inclusion in supply chains and to build on the momentum to accelerate the growth in the number of employers publishing their ethnicity pay gaps and setting targets. Businesses can demonstrate their commitment to inclusive and responsible business through these actions:

- 1. Chief Executives to sign up to, and refresh commitment to the expanded Race at Work Charter. Expand the commitment to zero tolerance on bullying and harassment, to include customers, clients, service users and contractors. Support inclusion allies in the workplace. Include Black, Asian, Mixed Race and other ethnically diverse led businesses in the supply chain (set targets for inclusion, timely payment and contact value).
- 2. Senior leaders to act as mentors and sponsors. Leaders to act as active mentors and sponsors, using their influence to open doors for Black, Asian, Mixed Race and other ethnically diverse employees when development or progression opportunities are being planned, discussed and allocated.
- 3. Increase transparency and accountability. Publish ethnicity pay gaps. Set and publish targets to improve representation and progression to senior executive and board level. Targets should be linked to pay and reward, and incentivise leaders to act as sponsors and advocates to progress talent in the pipeline to the top table, and at every level, while including different voices and perspectives around the key decision-making tables.
- 4. Set performance objectives for managers linked to pay and reward, to ensure active, conscious inclusion in their teams. All managers should have them. Objectives should include ensuring that employees from Black, Asian, Mixed Race and other ethnically diverse backgrounds have fair access to training, development and progression opportunities.

5. Embed actions on inclusion within Environment, Social and Governance (ESG) reporting. Include indicators of how success against the important principles of ESG will promote inclusion and how the organisation's internal and external impact will be measured.
